School Fair Tuesday

Fourteen Schools Competing

Fourteen schools are preparing to compete in the School Fair which will be held in Oyen on Tuesday, September 23.

The exhibits will be shown in the Agricultural Hall and will be in place for judging at 11 a.m. In addition to the exhibition of school work, there will be a public speaking contest and a physical culture competition. These two events will be staged in Oyen Theatre at 1:30 p.m. A good program of field sports is being arranged and it is anticipated that this fair will surpass all those of previous years.

Olds School of Agriculture Will Open October 28

Not many years since special Agricultural education was considered impractical and unnecessary; to-day statistics show that those farmers who are above the average in training are appreciably more successful than the untrained men.

The purpose of the Olds School of Agriculture which opens its doors for the eleventh time on October 28 this year, is to give to the farmers and their sons that special instruction which will fit them to successfully cope with the difficulties of modern farming and to give the farmer's sons a knowledge which will make them efficient home makers as well as practically fitting students for farm life. The courses also serve as preparation for further study, leading to degrees in agriculture or domestic science.

The courses are especially adapted to the needs of the farm boy or girl who cannot afford time and money to go through high school or University. No special entrance standard is maintained, it being simply required that boys and girls have sufficient elementary education to understand and profit by the work taken.

There are no tuition fees, both courses are free. The five winter months can consequently be spent at the school for a surprisingly small outlay. Girls are accommodated in a modern dormitory for $25 per month, while boys living in private boarding houses do so at a cost of approximately $7 per week. Talk with any ex-student regarding the value of the courses.

It is anticipated that English orders for Canadian wool will exceed 1,500,000 pounds this year, which will be a considerable increase over the business of 1923, amounting to 700,000 pounds.

Definite advice has been received at Victoria, B.C., that the Japanese training squadron, consisting of the "Kishima," "Asma" and "Asama" will visit Victoria during the winter. The squadron will leave Japan early in December, following the annual fall manoeuvres.

Approximately 69 per cent, or 1,352,604 of the population of Western Canada live on occupied farms. Of the balance, 474,516 live in its 20 cities and towns of over 2,500 and 228,062 in 3,509 small towns and villages of 2,500 or under.

The work of re-balancing the main line of the Canadian Pacific between Montreal and Toronto (the Lake Ontario shore line) has just been completed. Nearly 2,000,000 tons of crushed rock, or about 35,000 carloads, were used in this operation. Officials state that the roadbed is now as excellent as it can be made and second to none in the world.

Successful strawberry culture 300 miles north of the international boundary has been proven possible by R. A. Gordon, of Edmonton, Alta. One hundred plants brought from Ontario wintered well, blossomed heavily and produced a prolific crop of well-formed, fine-flavored fruit with rich color and flavor. Mr. Gordon has likewise had much success with cherries, wild plums and crab apples.

"Looks like murder," he said, his eyes leaving the victim and focusing on the wound, the hole of a steel bullet in the right temple. "It is murder—no ambush," the girl declared, her voice sharp with conviction.

But Seymour was not so sure. Without disarming a convulsive grin, he examined the revolver held in an outstretched hand. It had been discharged once.

"Wasn't a complete ambush, anyway," he resumed. "Could have drawn his gun after he had hit him. The way my ears read the reports, he fired just as the girl spoke—probably a spasmodic pull on the trigger with no aim or fire. You know, Montrose are not supposed to tell. The rule has killed a number of them."

"He was so brave—absolutely fearless," she murmured.

Seymour might have gone further in reconstructing the crime, but he checked observation. The subject best he suspected his training.

"You know him well, Miss Montrose," he asked, partially to divert her mind from his professional deductions.

"Yes, Ruth Dupure," she told him. "My uncle is a missionary here. At once he remembered Montrose's description of the colorful cousin who was leaving her father company. The contrast in type was remarkable.

"Yes," she went on. "I knew the contrast quite well and admired—both my uncle and I admired his courage and spirit."

"You said his name was—"

"The girl's frankness did not desert her. "His real name was Russell Seymour, but we knew him first as Bart Caswell. You see, he had been here for a month, studying the camp with out anyone suspecting him. He was not the mining expert he pretended to be. Not until the day before he disclosed who he was and put on his uniform."

Seymour tried to hide a smile; the plan which the girl outlined as Bart Caswell's seemed to be the same as his own. When he turned back at her, his hand was striding meditatively a clean shaven chin.

"In there a 'coroner in Gold' he asked."

"When a man was killed in a shaft cave-in on Sweet Mine, the day before, a deputy acted before uncle read the service," was the girl's information, delivered with a frown. The reason for the contraction of brow appeared when she added: "That deputy sheriff and coroner is a clump named

WORKING MEN'S EXPERIENCE

Read How She Found Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Amprion, Ontario.—"I must write and tell you my experience with your medicine. I was working at the mine for three years and became so run-down that I used to take my medicine every day and would be at home at least one day each week. I was treated by a doctor for anemia, but it didn't seem to do any good. I was told to take a rest, but was unable to, and kept on working. I was troubled mostly with my periods. I would sometimes pass three months, and when it came it would last about two weeks and I would experience terrible times in my right side that I could hardly stand. I am only 31 years of age and weigh 115 pounds now, and before taking the Vegetable Compound I was only 105 pounds. I was sickly for two years and some of my friends told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I had taken a bottle of it I felt a change. My mother began taking it for a different ailment and had found it very satisfactory. I am now able to tell friends about it and to answer letters asking about it. Miss Hazen, Box 700, Amprion, Ontario.

Sam Hardley, and he didn't like Bart. I mean Mr. Seymour."

The real Seymour made mental note of this fragment without seeming to be impressed on more than casually interested.

"At that, Hardley will have to be notified, I suppose," Miss Dupure went on. "It's the law, isn't it?"

"The sergeant noted, 'Something of a job was in the air. I'm going to have a little look into the matter to see what I can do.' He was waiting for five minutes."

"But not to follow his duty," cried the girl, taking a step toward him and laying an impulsive hand upon his sleeve. "Whoever murdered Bart may be hiding in the brush and wouldn't hesitate to take not to get shot. You don't know how desperate the case is. She broke off in sudden caution and flushed; consequently: "One killing is enough for today."

"A killing too many," he assured her, but swung into the saddle. "I'll take no unnecessary chances, and I'll not be gone long."

With the girl's disapproving look following him, he rode into the underbrush to the left of the trail. From that direction, he feared, had come the bullet. He had small hope of any show in the case. With the case so neatly turned, he could conceive no possibility of the sergeant's should have hidden around the scene of the crime.

There was a chance, however, that he might pick up the trail of desperado and learn to find before the camp's manager could get busy and himself out all signs.

At the first price offered, it seemed to the sergeant that the bogus officer had been riding out from town on some mission not entirely unconnected with the girls against whom he meant to act. Near the girl's camp, he had laid in wait and killed him.

His bold intention, Caswell's effort to answer undoubtedly had been futile. Then the slayer had aimed away in the air. It seemed that he had been told to go into town; either to get the girl's trail, or to return whence he had come. Seymour imagined that the would-be slayer had followed the girl's trail, and that the girl's trail was bound, was that a deliberate attempt to lead him to the girl's camp. The girl's trail was bound, was that a deliberate attempt to lead him to the girl's camp.

Roman Knight With Sword and Buckler

Interesting Discovery Is Made By a Peasant in Bulgaria

A peasant plowing near a small village in Bulgaria, turned up some of the most interesting archeological finds made in recent years. When the plow struck a marble tomb was disclosed and within lay a suite of bronze arms and a Roman knight, together with a shield, armor, spear and several armlets, including an exquisite vase.

Discovered by the National Museum, and Mr. Petrov, an expert on Greek antiquities, estimate that the find dates back to the pre-Alexandrian period. They suggest that the man may have been a member of a Hellenic colony on the Black Sea coast.

On a hill, well preserved and of a high order of workmanship, the figures of Apollo, Pallas, Athena, Poseidon, Minerva and Mars. One of the figures was a woman, a pioneer with the trident. The other ear-pieces were lacking.

The helmet was silvered and some of the white metal still adhered. The human figure that once bore the helmet and carried the weapons was entirely absent, except in the form of a small metal armlet.

"The knight who bore the armor was evidently a high personage," said Dr. Petrov. "Therefore, after the knight had been deposited in the grave it was burned, an early practice of cremation."

Some Chinese Still Will Sell Children If Hard Up Take That Way To Raise Money

That the selling of children, and especially of girls, is still prevalent in China—away from the foreignized cities—is shown by an episode that occurred a few days ago at the American Church Mission. A Chinese came in and related that he, his wife and child enroute from Hankow to their home in Nanking, were stranded at an inn on account of the winter illness.

They had been there, said, about two weeks and he was entirely out of funds. His wife, who had no money, and his only recourse was to sell his little son. He begged the mission people to buy him.

The investigation appeared to show that the tale was true; that they were strangers in the place and were entirely destitute. The missionaries had the woman brought to their hospital where she quickly responded to proper care; and two days later the little family was sent on its way with money enough to see them through to Nanking.

The aftermath was the same in any country. The mission was bequeathed with "worthy cases." It was remarkable that the mission people, who had a number of people found themselves, failed to sell their children, and it was notable that a majority of those offered were girls.

Wins Indian Name

Saskatchewan Boy Captures High Honors at Tuxis Boys Camp in Algonquin Park

Albert Brown, who represented Saskatchewan Tuxis boys at Camp Algonquin in Algonquin Park, was awarded the Dartmouth scholarship for general proficiency on the basis of all-around character ability at the 10th of the month camp, which was attended by 200 boys and leaders from all over the United States and Canada.

A still further distinction gained by the Saskatchewan Tuxis boys was that of being granted an Indian name in the Order of Gitchehmanick, which is composed of a select group of boys and leaders who have demonstrated their ability as campers and have shown the highest qualities of personality and conduct.

Repin, McDonald, a former resident of Regina, was the donor of a scholarship which was given to Albert Brown to attend the camp. Mr. McDonald was present in the camp for the closing banquet, when the announcement of the award was made.

To congratulate the Saskatchewan boy after the Tuxis camp, Mr. Brown, director of the camp.

The "honors" campers are chosen on the basis of all-around activities and relationships of a camp. The number of boys in the various activities qualified for by the campers is one of the factors considered. Albert Brown qualified for 16 of these honors in swimming, lifesaving, canoeing, carpentry, woodcraft, astronomy, games, flowers, citizenship, mobile speaking, diving, biology, entomology, Indian life and riding—Regina Leader.

Reforming the Calendar

Scheme Advocated by Winnipeg Man

The thirteen month calendar scheme recently passed in a resolution by the American Meteorological Society, was advocated by W. Harris, a pioneer Winnipegger several years ago.

The calendar reform scheme, as outlined by Mr. Harris, appeared in a book, "The Art of Rapid Computation and Science of Numbers," published in 1912.

The "year" of 13 months of four weeks each, was fully explained by Mr. Harris under the general head of "Chronology or Time Computation."

"The 13-month system, with 28 days to each month," says Mr. Harris, "has many points in its favor, and much to commend its adoption for universal use at the earliest possible date. This arrangement of 13 months of four weeks each with seven days to each week, would leave an extra day in each year, which could be made to occupy a place as a holiday on the last day of the year, or to be called New Year's Day and utilized as a holiday to start the year. It would thus cause no disarrangement concerning the names of the days of the week, nor with business transactions generally."

As a name would have to be given to the added or thirteenth month, Mr. Harris suggests that the mislabeled old name of the months be done away with and they be called the "first," "second," "third," and so on to "thirteenth" month.

Size Of Hailstones

Maximum Possible Size Cannot Be Inductively Ascertained

The question is often asked as to the maximum known or possible size of hailstones. According to records of the U.S. Weather Bureau, the maximum possible size of a single hailstone cannot be positively stated, but statistics larger than a man's fist and weighing over a pound have several times been reported on good authority.

During a hailstorm in Natal, on April 17, 1874, stones fell that weighed 4 pounds and a half, and passed through a corrugated-iron roof as if it had been made of paper. Hailstones 14 inches in circumference fell in North Wales, February, 1847. At Santa, Spain, on June 15, 1829, hailstones were of such magnitude that some of which are said to have weighed four and a half pounds. In October, 1864, a hailstorm at Ceres, Brazil, wrecked houses and sank vessels.

Authentic reports of the finding of hailstones larger than those above mentioned undoubtedly exist in all cases to masses of ice resulting from the coalescence, after falling, of the kernels and swollen by the moisture in the air. Hailstones are closely packed together on the ground.

Noted Maharajah Was Great English Scholar

Prince Ruled Over Three Million People in India

From Madras came news of the death of a great English scholar and a most progressive prince. The Maharajah, Sri Rama Varma, though a great English scholar and a most progressive prince, would not take meals with his wife because, according to the customs of his land, he was a Hindu, and his wife was a Christian.

The Maharajah drank water or eat a meal after he had shaken hands with or received a foreigner. He had taken a bath in running water. The crown falls to the son of the Maharajah's elder sister, who, according to custom, was married, while still girl, to a man of high caste. The Maharajah's own son, therefore, although a Hindu, was not allowed to marry in luxury, cannot take his father's title. Travancore, the leading Malayalam State of Southwest India, has an area of 6,750 square miles and a population of 2,000,000. The Maharajah, who possessed great wealth, lived in a beautiful palace at Travancore, the capital of the State. As a rule of so important a State he had a salary of 19 lacs, to which, as persona compunctum to himself, two were added, putting him in the front rank of Indian princes.

About Town and Country

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Webb and children, who returned to this district from Republic, Wash., two weeks ago, are the guests of Mr. C. E. Tupper.

Miss Thelma Bruhjiell, who has been spending a vacation with her parents, returned to Calgary last Sunday.

Mr. Philp, Sanitary Inspector for the Department of Health, was a town visitor yesterday. With few exceptions he found the village in very good order. Two properties were ordered to be cleaned up.

Threshing at Armitage's is going a little better than 15 bushels to the acre.

Mrs. Robert McMurray and Miss Edith Snyder of North Platte, Neb., arrived in town yesterday.

Chas. P. Snyder, E. P. Barbour, Art Wade, J. W. Allen, H. I. Campbell and G. H. Lamont, were among those who spent a day with the birds last Monday. The party started out at an early hour and report an excellent day's sport. The party returned with a bag of about 150 ducks, a few Hungarian partridge, and two prairie wolves.

Drilling at the Fuego Oil Company's site is going on steadily. A depth of 832 feet was reached on Monday evening.

Mrs. S. A. Miller, Mrs. C. S. Wright and Mrs. C. L. Dunford, were hostesses at a reception given for the staff of the Oyen School last Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Miller. The function proved a very enjoyable social affair. Over forty parents attended and met the members of the school staff.

Those who have seen William Atkins' crop estimate the yield at 20 bushels to the acre. It is considered the best crop in Superia district.

In the eleventh fortnightly crop report issued by the Department of Agriculture at Edmonton, it is estimated that about 12 per cent of the total wheat acreage has suffered to such an extent that the crop will either not be harvested at all or the yield will be so light as to be a negligible factor in the total yield of the province. The average yield for the province is placed at not more than 11 bushels to acre for wheat.

The whist drive and old time dance, held last night in Oyen Theatre under the auspices of the W. I., was a great success. A sum of over $60 was realized for the School Fair fund.

MORE SCOTTISH BRIDES FOR CANADA

The number of Scottish brides who have sailed from Glasgow to Canada this year, has been rather striking. Many of these young ladies are going to prospective husbands who have only been a short time in Canada. Here is a striking group, aboard the Canadian Pacific liner "Manitoba." Mr. Roderick MacLeod, the Gaelic singer, is in the centre of the group. The brides, from left to right, are: Miss Andrew, (Motherwell); Miss Graham, (Edinburgh); Miss Dunn and Miss Blair (Castbridge).
